To whom it may concern,

My wife and I employed Good London Builders to completely redevelop our house. From the onset we felt we had made the right decision. The team, led by Rory, hit the ground running and brought in all the required professionals to get us to a place where we could start work as quickly as possible. Rory managed this pre-build process effortlessly and meant that any planning / structural hurdles were navigated extremely well and meant that we fully understood what we were going to be building.

The build process itself was actually a pleasure. Rory had introduced us to three of his build teams and we finally settled on one who were excellent. The day to day was run extremely smoothly and it was a huge benefit for us to see update pictures every day, so that wherever we were in the world we could see men on site and progress being made. As a busy man this just meant I could relax in the knowledge that everything was under control.

The relationship that Rory has with his builders was of such a benefit to us that it added to our reassurance but also meant that he could pull in some favours along the way leading us to get some work done without charge. We also benefited from Good London Builder's trade discounts which saved us a decent amount of money along the way.

If I was ever doing another project, I would get Rory and the GLB team on it. We are already talking about a possible project in Scotland!

Kind regards,
