Re: Reference for Good London Builders

I was recommended to use Good London Builders by a friend so I contacted the MD, Rory Gordon to set up a meeting. He came to the flat and spent a decent amount of time understanding what I wanted to achieve from the property.

What I found really helpful was his experience in making suggestions about what I could do with particular rooms and aspects that I have been wanting to solve for some time. We worked around a solution to a rather unusual roof terrace that I have and he proposed creating a door out of a sash window – it works really well and now gives me excellent access to the roof terrace unlike before.

Their attention to detail was excellent and I felt that I was in really good hands. Rory put together a full brief for me, which we worked through over a number of meetings. We then agreed on it and he introduced me to 3 of his building teams. After a week or so we had the quotes in and based on my meeting of the builders, their costs and Rory's recommendation we decided on one team. I also decided to appoint Rory as project manager.

Having agreed a start date, I was given a detailed timeline of how the job would progress and this was adhered to perfectly under the close supervision and strong arm of Rory! I was kept updated on a daily basis with photographs from site – this was invaluable because I am extremely busy at work and simply don't have the time for any kind of supervision, but to review the pictures and respond to any questions on my Blackberry was the only way I could have been involved.

Ultimately Rory and his team delivered an excellent product, the job finished on budget and the quality of finish was very good. I was also impressed that where possible Rory will pass on trade discounts on materials meaning that you also benefit from his connections as well.

All in all a really excellent job and I would whole heartedly recommend Rory and his team at Good London Builders.

Kind regards
